Fourth Celebrations To Be Highlighted By Circleville Affairs

Racing Club Sets Events

Fireworks, Games Also On Agenda

If Pickaway Countians can find no entertainment over the coming long Fourth of July holiday, it will be a miracle.

Promoters in Circleville and Ashville have lined up a vast programs including everything from harness racing to baseball games to the traditional Independence Day fireworks displays.

Attention is being focused on Pickaway Fairgrounds where the newly-formed Pickaway County Harness Club will make its debut as a sponsor of trotting and pacing events.

Three races are scheduled for each of Saturday and Monday afternoons with the first heat to start off at 2:30 p. m.

SATURDAY'S harness meet calls for a 2-year-old pace, a 26-class trot and a classified pace. Monday's card is set up to handle a year-old trot, a 26-class pace and a 20-class trot. Each will draw a $300 purse.

Entries for the Saturday meeting appear in an adjoining column.

The harness club's debut will provide the first instance when an automatic starting gate has been used on the Pickaway oval. The club has contracted with W. E. (Brig) Mercer to bring in his mobile gate.

Heretofore, races here have seen the time-honored hand-starting method in which a starter courses the entries and then bellows "Let 'em come now!" as

Horton Company Being Absorbed By New Idea Co.

Final negotiations were being completed Friday toward the reorganization of the Horton Manufacturing Co. in Circleville.

Although details were unavailable, it is understood the local firm is being absorbed by the New Idea Corp., manufacturers of farm machinery.

Principal product of the company here will be cutter bars for mowing machines.

Chief stockholders of New Idea Thursday and Friday were completing the financial arrangements for the transfer.

It is believed that the new company will employ between 40 and 60 persons.

THE PRESENT staff already has received its first paycheck from New Idea.

The old Horton firm, a division of Aviation Corp., is to discontinue production of its automatic "electric eye" garage doors.

Whether John Wells, general manager of the Horton firm, will be retained under the new setup remained an unanswered question Friday.

First Tomato?

Fred Howell of 101 Reber avenue, Friday challenged Pickaway County's gardeners when he laid claim to picking the season's first ripe homegrown tomato.

Ohio had a chilly Thursday night, with the mercury dropping to as low as 45 degrees at Zanesville and to 47 at East Liverpool. Temperatures were to climb into the low 80s Friday afternoon after holding in the 70s in most places Thursday. Circleville recorded a high of 79, a low of 50.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

The Democrats will have more delegates than the Republicans did at Philadelphia and Truman will need 70 more votes than Dewey did for a majority. This will make nice practice for November.

That is if Harry gets the nomination. Some Democrats are still trying to get Ike to repeat the terms of unconditional surrender.

At the moment Mr. Truman has enough delegates pledged to him on the first ballot to slip on the second ballot.

But the only way they can get 140 more delegates in convention hall is to take out two rows of Republicans. There are still some there waiting for the Taft boom to start.

The Democrats studied the television coverage of the Republican convention and they plan to make up more speakers to look like Irene Dunne. In fact she may be nominated if it's a close fight.

ALWAYS ANOTHER SUCKER WAITING

Pair Pulls Old Trick, Gets Caught

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 2—They call it "dropping the pigeon."

It's an old, old trick but there's always another sucker waiting to risk the "bird in hand for the two birds in the bush."

Two Cincinnati men just worked it a few times too many and that was why they were enroute today to a Kentucky penitentiary to serve five years each.

The men were Horatio Perry and Charles Minor. Both had long police records in Ohio.

The "drop the pigeon game" was worked on an aged woman from Indianapolis in Louisville's union railway station. As the woman walked along she saw a pocket book and reached for it.

But one of the men was just a little bit faster. As the woman watched, he opened the pocketbook and discovered a "lot of money."

He offered to split the money with the woman if she agreed to keep quiet. She said she would. But then the man, who was joined by his "friend," wanted her to "put $600 so she wouldn't double-cross" them.

The woman took the men with her to Indianapolis and got the money. They took it and went out to "get some change." They didn't come back with her money.

Louisville police hunted down Perry and Minor. A criminal court called their trick "banding together and confederating" to commit a crime.

An appointive official who will be wherever Jake Arvey is!"

Arvey is the quiet but all-performing Democratic boss of Chicago, who is expected to tell President Truman some unpleasant facts about political life before the Democratic convention begins July 12.

It is all but impossible at this distance to predict whether the meeting will be turned into a convention or a civil war.

For, during the next seven days, this country can expect to witness a "Draft Eisenhower" boom pushed with all the high-pressure, huckster tricks of the political trade. It will be accompanied by an equally high-voltage, high-decibel "Sidetrack Truman" move.

The nominal Eisenhower headquarters will be the ADA (Americans for Democratic Action) beachhead. But one practical Democratic politician summed up the situation in a most revealing and succinct phrase today when he said:

"Eisenhower headquarters will be wherever Jake Arvey is!"

The other active Eisenhower for the Americans for Democratic Action, have hired as convention headquarters a fraternity house, that of Phi Kappa Sigma.

They will use this house, near Convention Hall, as a command post from which to push the campaign in behalf of Gen. Eisenhower and Justice William O. Douglas of the supreme court.

Leon Henderson, chairman of a senator named Truman for the vice-presidency.

ADA, says that ADA is backing neither man for first place. He explained:

"Some of our chapters are rooting for one man, some for the other. We will hand out buttons and pamphlets for each man."

ADA will not try to match the avalanche of give-aways, from nylons to housecoats, that distinguished the Dewey campaign candidacy two weeks ago.

Henderson said:

"Our only give-aways will be sound advice, surely a novelty at political conventions."

Certain it is that the theme song for the coming Democratic conclave at best, will be a wistful rendition of "I'm Just Mild About Harry."

At worst, it will be an enraged rebel yell from the South.

The Eisenhower group believes that if Truman is not nominated on the first ballot, the general is as good as in.

This faction still has no doubts that Eisenhower will accept the nomination if it is offered him.

One of the men engaged in booming him explained: "Eisenhower is seeing a steady stream of party committee men, chairmen and senators. There's no law forcing him to undergo this form of torture in hot weather. He doesn't have to listen to them if he doesn't want to."

"The Army has a term for it: SWL. This means 'self-inflicted wound'. The general doesn't have to inflict himself with this self-wounding by political palaver unless he wants to, does he?"

Rail Labor Chiefs Ready New Talks In Salary Dispute

WASHINGTON July 2—Chiefs of three rail brotherhoods trekked back to the White House for further wage talks today after permanent anti-strike losing a court fight against Cominfor carriers.

The three rail brotherhoods will appeal the district court anti-strike injunction.

Judge Goldsborough overruled their contentions that the government seizure was only a "paper" action and therefore issuance of an injunction was prohibited by the Norris-LaGuardia Act in a private labor dispute. The jurist said:

"The court doesn't think that the fact that the government didn't fit to change and alter the railway setup throughout the country... in any way indicates that the United States does not have actual control of the railroads."

THE SUPREME court has upheld issuance of injunctions to prevent strikes against the government.

Judge Goldsborough said that if a railroad strike occurred political ideologies opposed to ours would be given an opportunity to graft themselves onto the national economy." He added:

"Our influence throughout the world would be damaged. We would become a laughing stock."

He said that the four-power inter-allied body set up just three years ago for the joint government of the former German capital can not be "denounced unilaterally."

Soviet officials in Berlin declared yesterday that the Kommandatura has "ceased to exist."

British Talking With U.S., France

LONDON, July 2—The British government announced today that the three Western Allies have agreed to make a direct "approach" to the Soviet government on the "worsened Berlin situation."

A foreign office spokesman said that the United States, Great Britain and France at present are consulting on the exact form of the "approach" and whether it should be presented jointly or by each power separately.

Lewis H. Douglas, U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, conferred with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin prior to the foreign office announcement.

The spokesman said that Douglas, French Ambassador to Great Britain René Massigli and Sir William Strang, the foreign office expert on Germany, are in "constant, day-and-night" consultation on the Berlin situation.

He added that the three-power discussions will continue over the weekend.

THE SPOKESMAN emphasized that the British government considers the four-power Berlin Kommandatura still in existence despite any Soviet action to the contrary.

Berlin Mayoress Told Accept Only Russian Orders

BERLIN, July 2—Soviet authorities ordered the acting mayoress of Berlin today to accept only their directions in municipal chief executive.

Frau Schröder, with her deputy, Ferdinand Friedenberg, recently drafted a Berlin city council appeal to the United Nations to end the Soviet food blockade of Western Berlin.

The British-licensed newspaper Telegraph said that the German economic commission, which is Russia's nucleus for an East Germany government, is transferring its headquarters because of determination by the Western Allies to remain in Berlin.

It came at a moment when officials of a Soviet-controlled rump government for Eastern Germany were reported moving from Berlin to Leipzig.

Typical Independence Day conditions were promised Ohio Friday by the weather bureau during the long holiday weekend.

Weathermen said that the two-day cool spell was about ended and that it would be warm and fairly humid Saturday and Sunday.

Stalin Assured Of Allegiance

BELGRADE, July 2 — Thousands of Yugoslav National Front members demanded in a telegraphed petition to Soviet Premier Josef Stalin today that he secure a retraction of "unfounded accusations" by the Cominform against Yugoslav leaders.

The message was sent on behalf of 15,000 members of the National Front, composed of the dominating political parties in Yugoslavia.

They are principally the Communists, Socialists, Republicans, Agrarians, Independent Democrats and Serb Democrats.

In their telegram to Stalin they requested that everything possible be done to "secure retraction of unfounded accusations levelled against our entire country, party and central committee."

The National Front supporters, while decrying the action of the Russian-dominated Communist Information Bureau which accused Premier Marshal Tito and others of an anti-Soviet attitude, renewed their allegiance to Stalin.

Main stumbling block reported is the brotherhood's sudden boosting of demands to cover the "third round" postwar pay adjustment now being granted in the coal, automobile and other major industries.

THE CASE started last Fall as a "second round" wage dispute. The three unions refused a 15.5-cent hourly increase accepted by over a million rail workers in 18 other brotherhoods.

The latter now are engaged in negotiations with the railroads for a "third round" boost, and the engineers, firemen and

Presiding judge for the two-day meet here will be James Morris of Sabina. He will be assisted by Paul Redenfels, formerly of the Circleville Herald and now with the Washington C. H. Record Herald; and Orin Updyke, well-known countian.

Saturday night at the Fairgrounds, the harness club will present Klein's Circus Varieties—a pocket-size circus reported to be one of the better acts staged all on a single platform.

HARNESS club officials say advance reports rate the Klein organization highly. It features "The Armstrongs," an acrobatic comedy act. Then there is Jess Sides who is a unicycle expert. The program is to be rounded out with trained animal acts.

Harness club officials said that the grandstand will be entirely covered with canvas. A special, permanent steel frame has been finished and is held together with arc-welding. It will remain standing for the annual county fair in September.

Monday night, starting at 9:30, the Legion will sponsor a fireworks display at the Fairgrounds. The display will be set off on the Russ Palm farm and visitors on the Fairgrounds will be able to get a good view of the pyrotechnics.

Although things will be on the quiet side at the Fairgrounds Sunday, activities in this area will shift to Circleville's Ted Lewis Park that day.

At that time, the Howard Hall post American Legion, will provide a full afternoon of activities.

A series of games and contests for youngsters will start at 1:30 p.m. in the park. Directed by James Kirkpatrick, supervisor of this city's Summer playground program, the kiddies will be awarded prizes for their various efforts.

AT 2 P. M., the Circleville Legion junior baseball team will be matched against the Ironton Juniors.

The same afternoon, the Circleville Community Band, under the baton of Alfred Lee, will give an hour's concert.

Along with its debut with harness racing events, the Pickaway County Harness Club will give county youngsters a big-time chance to compete in pony and bicycle races.

Sandwiched between harness races both Saturday and Monday, the club will hold pony and bicycle contests Saturday's entries will be geared to smaller entries while the Monday card will feature the larger sizes.

Presiding judge for the two-day meet here will be James Morris of Sabina. He will be assisted by Paul Rodenfels, formerly of The Circleville Herald and now with the Washington C. H. Record Herald; and Orin Updyke, well-known countian.

Saturday night at the Fairgrounds, the harness club will present Klein's Circus Varieties—a pocket-size circus reported to be one of the better acts staged all on a single platform.

HARNESS club officials say advance reports rate the Klein organization highly. It features "The Armstrongs," an acrobatic comedy act. Then there is Jess Sides who is a unicycle expert. The program is to be rounded out with trained animal acts.

Harness club officials said that the grandstand will be entirely covered with canvas. A special, permanent steel frame has been finished and is held together with arc-welding. It will remain standing for the annual county fair in September.

Monday night, starting at 9:30, the Legion will sponsor a fireworks display at the Fairgrounds. The display will be set off on the Russ Palm farm and visitors on the Fairgrounds will be able to get a good view of the pyrotechnics.

Although things will be on the quiet side at the Fairgrounds Sunday, activities in this area will shift to Circleville's Ted Lewis Park that day.

At that time, the Howard Hall post American Legion, will provide a full afternoon of activities.

A series of games and contests for youngsters will start at 1:30 p.m. in the park. Directed by James Kirkpatrick, supervisor of this city's summer playground program, the kiddies will be awarded prizes for their various efforts.

AT 2 P.M., the Circleville Legion junior baseball team will be matched against the Ironton Juniors.

Sandwiched between harness races both Saturday and Monday, the club will hold pony and bicycle contests. Saturday's entries will be geared to smaller entries while the Monday card will feature the larger sizes.

Saturday pony race will be for entries 46 inches or smaller in height and the bicycle competition that day will be limited to youngsters 14 years of age and younger.

Monday, ponies 46 inches and taller will compete and cyclists older than 14 years will be matched.

First prize winner in the pony race each day will take home $25 with $15 going to second and $10 to the third placer.

Bicycle prizes are listed at $15, $10 and $5.

In addition, the harness club will provide various concessions and rides. A gate admission price of 50 cents will be charged adults. Twelve to 18-year-olds will pay 25 cents and youngsters under 12 will be admitted without charge.

Some quarters believed that an American-British-French note to Moscow already has been drafted.

The Daily Mirror went so far as to say that the message, couched in the strongest terms is expected to insist on the immediate reestablishment of four-power control in Berlin.

It is predicted also that it will be reemphasized that America, Britain and France intend to remain in Berlin whatever the Soviet reaction is.

Moscow probably will be told that the Soviets alone will be held responsible for consequences of a permanent breach of the four-power agreement in line with the Russian declaration yesterday that the governing council for Berlin no longer exists.

Old Guard Physicians Are Lashed

Jealousy Curbing Young Aspirants

COLUMBUS, July 2 — Dr. Charles Doan of Ohio State University, takes the old guard of the medical world to task in an article in which he states that eligible would-be doctors outnumber teaching facilities by seven or eight to one.

Dr. Doan is dean of the OSU medical college. His article appears in the current issue of The Health Center Journal, published quarterly by the university's colleges of medicine and dentistry.

The article points out two possible deterrents to the badly needed expansion of the medical teaching facilities:

1. Jealousy among older doctors of the young students.

2. The high cost of a medical education, caused by "highly scientific diagnostic and therapeutic procedures emerging today."

Dr. Doan's article says the solution is "to associate state, federal and private funds thus reducing reduplication of scarce and expensive equipment".

The doctor continues:

"THIS CHALLENGE to medical education cannot continue indefinitely. We are now desperately in need of more and better trained physicians in practically every specialty, as well as for the general practice of medicine. Without another immediate international emergency, the potential opportunities for every well-trained physician are now worldwide.

"World medicine looks to American medicine not only for leadership in ideas but for actual practitioners of our arts and science.

"There should be no restrictions in sharing our knowledge through fear of excessive competition."

His article concludes with the statement:

"We must improve the quality and increase the quantity of tomorrow's physicians, for the sake of ourselves and the health of the world."

The first novel probably was written more than 21 centuries ago, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The earliest novels on record were written in the second century B. C.

Cowboy Starts Eat Much Fuel

CLEVELAND July 2—If you want to cut down your automobile fuel bill you had better start cutting down on racehorse starts and screeching stops in city driving.

In a test conducted here yesterday by officials of the Yellow Cab Co. and the Thompson Vitarometer Corp., it was proved that normal, easy driving results in gas savings of more than 50 percent.

Four cabs were used in the 20-mile test, two following "cowboy" tactics and the others operating according to prescribed good driving rules.

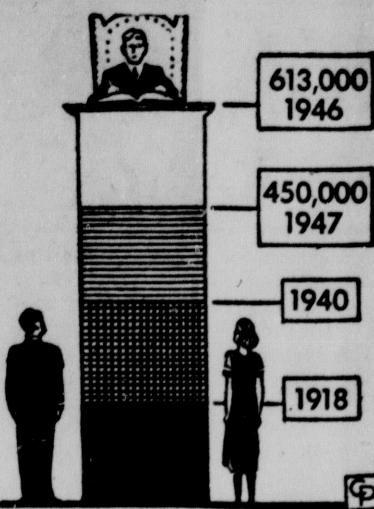

When the tests were completed, the two speed-happy cabs had an average of 9.1 miles on a gallon of gas while the other two had an average of 15.8 miles on a gallon.

Labor Dispute In Court Again

CANTON, July 2—The center of action in the Hoover Co. strike in suburban North Canton shifted again today to the courts.

For the second time since the strike was called June 10, the company and the CIO-United Electrical Workers took their dispute to Stark County common pleas court.

In the latest action, the union charged the company with contempt of a previous court order

FIRST DIVORCE rate drop in 15 years shows marital splitups falling 26.6 per cent from the all-time peak of 613,000 in 1946 to 450,000 in 1947, says a national survey of the Family Service Association. The association lists four reasons for the dip: easing of housing, high cost of living which leaves couples with less money to finance divorce, more women quitting jobs to stay home and keep house, and a more serious approach to marriage. (International) which ordered both sides to bargain in good faith in an effort to settle the strike.

Judge A. C. L. Barthelme set a hearing for Tuesday on the charges of the union, which also accused the company of slowing down the payment of back wages.

Cowboy Starts Eat Much Fuel

CLEVELAND, July 2 — If you want to cut down your automobile fuel bill you had better start cutting down on racehorse starts and screeching stops in city driving.

In a test conducted here yesterday by officials of the Yellow Cab Co. and the Thompson Vittamer Corp., it was proved that normal, easy driving results in gas savings of more than 50 percent.

Four cabs were used in the 20-mile test, two following "cowboy" tactics and the others operating according to prescribed good driving rules.

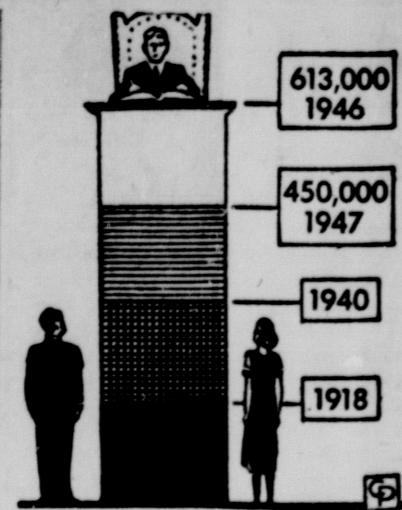

When the tests were completed, the two speed-happy cabs had an average of 9.1 miles on a gallon of gas while the other two had an average of 15.8 miles on a gallon.

Labor Dispute In Court Again

CANTON, July 2 — The center of action in the Hoover strike in suburban North Canton shifted again today to the courts.

For the second time since the strike was called June 10, the company and the CIO-United Electrical Workers took their dispute to Stark County common pleas court.

In the latest action, the union charged the company with contempt of a previous court order which ordered both sides to bargain in good faith in a effort to settle the strike.

Judge A. C. L. Barthelme set a hearing for Tuesday on the charges of the union, which also accused the company of slowing down the payment of back wages.

In peacetime the automobile industry uses more aluminum than any other industry.

PUBLIC OPINION POLLS

EFFECTS of public opinion polls, and responsibilities of those who take them, were discussed at a recent session of the University of Chicago round table.

It is generally acknowledged that the opinions tabulated in polls often have a strong influence on national leaders who are dealing with the matters concerned. Further it is believed that the polls themselves actually influence public opinion, by swaying the minds of persons who want to be on the majority side of public questions. There was considerable discussion as to whether these effects are good or bad for a democratic system. Needless to say, no conclusion was reached.

The fact that polls have weight in determining the outcome of public questions imposes a heavy responsibility on those responsible for the polls. If the best interests of the people are to be served, polls must be taken with conscientious regard for accuracy and impartiality. Since they only sample opinion, rather than taking a full cross-section, both fairness and accuracy depend on a thorough knowledge of the technical theories of sampling.

Leaders in the poll-taking industry say they are aware of their responsibilities. It is to be hoped that they are, for the individual has little means, except his own common sense, to protect himself from being misled by the reported opinions of others.

CAN'T BOSS BEAVERS

THE BELIEF in untrammeled free enterprise was demonstrated in St. Helens, Ore., by four employees of the city water department. Officials had "hired," without pay, four beavers. They set them loose in a creek bed, hoping the animals would follow their natural inclinations for a dam-building. St. Helens wanted to impound water against dry seasons.

The beavers built their dams, good ones, all over the place. They worked almost around the clock. But they wouldn't throw up the dams where the engineers wanted them. The engineers for a year went carefully behind the animals, destroyed the wrongfully placed walls of dirt, waited hopefully for the beavers to put their dams where humans indicated they were needed.

The beavers went back to work on their original locations. The water department, after a year of patience, fired the beavers, in fact drove them from the creek valley.

You can lead a beaver to a dam site, but you can't make him work there.

Navy Would Make Guam Pacific Ocean Gibraltar

Giant Aircraft Carrier "Floating Island" Base

WASHINGTON—The Navy is preparing to spend $800 million dollars to make the island of Guam in the Pacific an armed fort second to none—and that goes in event of an atomic war, too.

The service has on hand $83 million dollars to begin its formidable task of making Guam a "Gibraltar of the Pacific."

Actually, use of the island is not expected to be so great as originally planned, but it's still the projected stepping off point for the supply forces to be used in event of an emergency in the Pacific.

Vice Adm. R. B. Carney says that the Guam development program today is about 50 per cent of what had been contemplated in 1945. It is probable that the long-range of newly developed bombers developed by the Navy may have something to do with this.

In any event, the Navy is concentrating on underground fuel tanks and ammunition depots—in preparation should the world again be confronted with war.

• "FLOATING ISLAND"—The Navy's new 65,000-ton carrier, authorized in the closing hours of Congress, will give the United States a "floating island" base from which devastating attacks against any enemy could be launched within days—perhaps hours—of the outbreak of any new war.

Military men agree that this country's chief hope of survival in event of an atom-bomb attack would be a swift counterattack severe enough to immobilize the enemy's bases of operation.

Outlying United States bases in Alaska, Greenland and elsewhere could mount such counterattacks but only if they happen to be within warplane range of the enemy.

On the other hand, the new super carrier could dash to any point

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's

Like Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and Elihu Root, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio achieves every success but the presidency.

His failure in the recent GOP convention was due to several causes, principally an inadequate campaign organization and a fear that he would not do well enough to pull them through in marginal districts.

Dewey's campaign management was superb. His three managers, Herbert Brownell Jr., J. Russel Sprague and Edwin Jaekle, moved without friction or wasted motion. Stassen and Vandenberg had smooth, mechanical organizations, although both suffered from caginess. Taft's, on the other hand, was too rough and tumble, too unsure.

For instance, the Taft organization let it be believed that he would open with about 350 votes; that figure never appeared. The Dewey people said that they would make it but gave no figure. Either the Taft people were too optimistic or they did not know. That is bad management.

This weakness could have overcome were it not that this convention contained an extraordinary number of candidates for local office and for Congress. Many districts are, for Republicans, marginal; that is, they can be won only if the top of the ticket gets so large a vote that he pulls everyone along with him. These candidate-delegates were worried lest, with Taft as the nominee, they would be left behind. In every delegation such persons fought Taft. They were really protecting what they thought were their own interests.

Whether their judgment was sound, they were not willing to take the risk. Dewey was regarded as the best vote-getter. Many mutual friends had hoped that Taft and Dewey would have an automatic agreement as to which would be the candidate after the second ballot. At no time was there any agreement between them in spite of the numerous stories to the contrary. This was an error on Taft's part.

Taft also erred in the last days of the convention by joining the "hold the line" of the anti-Dewey forces organized by Governor Duff of Pennsylvania, whose brain-truster was Harry Luce. Taft had no business being in this because it was aimed at him. The objective of the "hold the line" was first to stop Dewey and then to kill off Taft. It was really an anti-Taft move designed to achieve the nomination of Vandenberg on a Vandenberg-Taft ticket. This was to be accomplished, in spite of Vandenberg's poor showing in the convention by a mechanical process of elimination. Taft discovered what his "friends" were doing to him too late.

Fortunately, Taft and Dewey respect each other and nothing in the convention occurred to destroy their friendship.

The Dewey people made no promises but trusted to the normal human instinct of going along with the one who appears to be the winner.

Taft has no cause for personal antagonism to Dewey and Dewey will remember that it was the Vandenberg and not the Taft group that forced the unnecessary and unpleasant postponement after the second ballot. Taft stands out a gentleman and a good sport.

on the world's oceans and then launch its A-bomb-carrying aircraft. This way there are few points on the earth's surface which could not be reached.

The new flat-top, 50 per cent bigger than the largest warship now afloat, will carry multi-engine planes capable of carrying up to 10 tons of bombs. Its speed and range, of course, are top-secret.

• BIG FOUR MEETING?—Do not discount too much reports that there may be an overwhelmingly important meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers to consider what Moscow has made to appear as Soviet peace feelers.

For various political reasons the administration line has been to toss these seeming overtures off. However, the purpose was to maintain an awareness of the international situation until Congress enacted measures considered necessary to back up diplomatic discussions.

The way for Big Four talks already has been opened by Russia's agreement to discuss navigation on the Danube river, Europe's vital waterway.

If this confab succeeds, the western powers will feel that there may be some value to a meeting to consider the German and Austrian peace treaties again. More international conferences could easily follow.

• INFLATION SIGNS—Presidential economic advisers are warily watching the nation's price index for signs of another burst of inflation. There are several indications that prices and wages are going up, but whether this portends runaway inflation is at present debatable.

In recent weeks, top corporations granted another round of wage increases. Some, like General Motors, were pay boosts tied to the Bureau of Labor Statistics price index.

However, none of them was given gratuitously. Price increases swiftly followed. With leading corporations setting the pace, it was felt that smaller firms would be forced to follow suit or face increasing competition for materials.

Nevertheless, there are still signs that the threat of uncontrolled inflation is being counteracted. Although consumer credit is at an all-time high, buying power also is up.

CHAPTER THIRTY

ANDREW made a flying trip upstairs to see if Gloria was tucked in. She was crying. "I've got to leave you, but I won't be long. I'd get your mother if I could; Gloria, but there's no way of reaching her, and I'd rather go after the doctor—it's more important."

"All right," she sobbed. "I'm leaving Joe here. He's great company. And I'll be back as soon as I can."

He dared not waste more time, and raced out to his car. It was beginning to get dark, and there was the usual evening traffic in Branfield. The one and only traffic policeman was on duty. Andrew took the road in to town at seventy miles an hour, and didn't slow down too much when he hit Main Street. He kept his hand on the horn and pushed through as fast as he could. When the policeman held up his hand and blew his whistle at him, Andrew simply went on through anyhow.

He left the town behind him and turned up the back road Miss Campbell had mentioned. Here he had to go more slowly, for it was rutted and narrow. A car came toward him with its lights on, and he swerved aside, then slammed on his brakes as it passed, and reached for the horn again. A prolonged blast brought the other car to a standstill, too. Andrew backed up.

"I've been looking for you," he began without preamble. "Just saw it was you as you passed." Dr. Torrey stared at him questioningly. "Gloria—made herself a dish with mushrooms she picked herself. She says she doesn't know one kind from another, but from what she said it sounded as if some of them had been Amanitas." Dr. Torrey's face tensed. "I didn't know what else to do, so I stuck my finger down her throat, and hadn't even washed up her dishes as yet. I imagine your prompt action has saved her life . . . Now, where is the mushroom dish?"

Andrew produced it, and she put some in a glass jar to take along to the laboratory at the hospital for analysis. "I'll let you know what we find. Even if it turns out that the mushrooms were harmless, though, you did the right thing—the safe thing." She moved toward the door, but at that moment there was a thunderous knock.

Mrs. Potts leaped to her feet.

"My lands, what now!" she cried.

Andrew opened the back door, and the Branfield motorcycle policeman strode in.

"Oh, you're here, are you?" he shouted, glaring at Andrew, and ignoring the two women.

Dr. Torrey, however, was not to be ignored. "Shhh!" she said sternly. "There's sickness here. Not so loud."

He looked a little sheepish, but his face darkened again at once.

"You," he said, "I saw your car standing outside. Let me see your driver's license." Tearing through the center of town at the busiest time of day, with your horn blaring loud enough to wake the dead, and riding by Officer Gilette and his stop sign and his whistle as if you was God Almighty, I beg your pardon," he added parenthetically for the women's benefit.

"Let me see that license!"

Andrew reached into his pocket unwillingly. His license, he had almost remembered, was in the name of Paul Andrew Delacourt. And so was the registration of his car. Not that he cared, as far as the publicity went, for that had died long ago. And he would have done taken his real name again long since if it were not for Joan. If she got to know who he was, he was afraid—

Dr. Torrey intervened. "Oh, but Officer, he was on his way to get me. And it was a desperate situation, really. Gloria had eaten some poison mushrooms, and might have died . . ."

"I didn't know what else to do, so I stuck my finger down her throat, and put her to bed to keep her warm."

"Good," Dr. Torrey, he was glad to see, was saying again. "I'll pick up a stomach pump at the hospital and be right over." Emma Potts isn't there?"

"She's at the Alliance meeting."

"You pick her up. Gloria will want her. And so will I, when I have to use the pump," she added with the ghost of a smile. Without another word, she put her old car in gear and rocketed down the road at full speed.

Andrew, remembering how he had forced his way through the evening traffic in town, wisely took a couple of side streets to get to the church. Two words of explanation were all Emma Potts needed to make her drop everything and come with him. But even so, Dr. Torrey's car was already at the porch steps when they got there.

Andrew escorted Mrs. Potts upstairs, then—from force of habit—opened the door to his old room, and sank into the comfortable rocker. A few moments later the sounds of weeping and protest coming from Gloria's room proved too much for him, and he tiptoed downstairs. He started to throw away the savory-looking dish Gloria had concocted from left-over chicken, canned shrimp and the "pretty" mushrooms, but he thought better of it, and simply set it to one side. Dr. Torrey might want to take some along.

It seemed hours before the two women came down again. Dr. Torrey smiled at them, but Emma Potts looked as if she had been through a devastating experience. She sat down at the kitchen table with knees that obviously were buckling under her.

Dr. Torrey said, with commotion in her voice, "Gloria told us of how you tricked her, Mr. Paulson. I'm glad you did, and I'm particularly glad that you came when you did. She says she had just finished eating, and hadn't even washed up her dishes as yet. I imagine your prompt action has saved her life... Now, what is the mushroom dish?"

Andrew produced it, and she put some in a glass jar to take along to the laboratory at the hospital for analysis. "I'll let you know what we find. Even if it turns out that the mushrooms were harmless, though, you did the right thing—the safe thing." She moved toward the door, but at that moment there was a thunderous knock.

Emma Potts leaped to her feet. "Oh, my lands, what now!" she cried. Andrew opened the back door, and the Brantford motorcycle policeman strode in.

"Oh, you're here, are you?" he shouted, glaring at Andrew, and ignoring the two women.

Dr. Torrey, however, was not to be ignored. "Shh!" she said sternly. "There's sickness here. Not so much."

He looked a little sheepish, but his face darkened again at once. "You," he said, "I saw your car standing outside. Let me see your driver's license." Tearing through the center of town at the busiest time of day, with your horn blaring loud enough to wake the dead, and riding by Officer Gilette and his stop sign and his whistle as if you was God Almighty. I beg your pardon," he added parenthetically for the women's benefit. "Let me see that license."

Andrew reached into his pocket unwillingly. His license, he had just remembered, was in the name of Paul Andrew Delacourt. And so was the registration of his car. Not that he cared, as far as the publicity went, for that had died long ago. And he would have liked his real name again long since if it were not for Joan. If she got to know who he was, he was afraid—

Dr. Torrey intervened. "Oh, but Officer, he was on his way to get me. And it was a desperate situation, really. Gloria had eaten some poison mushrooms, and might have died . . ."

"Well," his friend greeted him. "I hear you're a hero again. Gettin' to be a habit?" "Nonsense," Andrew protested. "That wasn't heroic—that was only common sense."

Eph, who was about to insert the nozzle into the gas tank, stopped with his arm in mid-air. "Say," he commented with a grin, "you're beginnin' to talk like a real New Hampshire man . . . How is Gloria this morning?"

"Right as rain. I guess we got all the poison out of her. And it was poison, too—the lab analysis showed the casserole dish was full of muscarin."

"What's that? Sounds more like perfume than poison."

"It's the poison in the mushroom she ate," Andrew informed him.

"Well, I'm glad the kid's going to be okay. I'm right sorry for the way I spoke the other day—at your party. Emma's right, I ought to learn to keep my big mouth shut."

He sounded so suddenly mournful that Andrew looked at him in surprise.

Dolores Hawkes Weds
Woodrow Carley
Thursday Evening

Date Is Same
Parents Used

Selecting the same date as her parents did 21 years ago for their wedding, Miss Dolores Hawkes exchanged nuptial vows Thursday evening with Woodrow Carley.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawkes of East Franklin street. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Carley of North Court street.

The Rev. Carl L. Wilson officiated for the ceremony at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in First Evangelical United Brethren church.

Altar of the church was banked with hydrangeas, white begonias and ferns. Two seven-branched candelabra and a five-branched candelabrum completed the decorations. Pews were marked by bows of green and white ribbons.

The bride given in marriage by her father, chose for the occasion a crepe frock designed in white orchids on a background of brown. The full skirt rippled from a bustle in the back. She carried a small white Testament topped with an orchid. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

In carrying out the traditional something "blue" the bride carried a georgette handkerchief, of Mrs. Berman Wertman of East Franklin street.

Miss Phyllis Hawkes attended her sister in a canary yellow two-piece linen dress. She used white accessories and wore a white rose wrist corsage.

Cecil Andrews of South Scioto street served as best man.

Earl Wallen of Duvall and Harold Carley of Lockbourne seated the guests.

Miss Lucille Kirkwood presented a half hour period of pre-nuptial organ music, and during the ceremony softly played "I Love You Truly."

She accompanied Clarence Radcliffe as he sang "Oh Promise Me", "Always", "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Approximately 50 persons, including relatives and friends from Circleville, Columbus and Worthington were invited to the reception in the home of the bride's parents.

For the occasion the home was decorated in lighted tapers in crystal holders, and bouquets of sweetpeas and hydrangeas.

Refreshments were served buffet style from a bride's table centered by a three-tiered wedding cake. Atop the cake was a miniature bride and groom. Sweetpeas and tapers completed the appointments.

A light blue crepe dress with accents of white was selected by Mrs. Hawkes for the wedding of her daughter.

Mrs. Carley, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gray flowered dress made with a drape effect. Both mothers had garters pinned at their shoulders.

The new Mrs. Carley was graduated by Circleville high school in 1946.

The bridegroom was graduated by Hamilton Township high school and spent four and a half years in the U. S. Army. He now is employed by Container Corporation of America.

The bride and bridegroom will go to housekeeping in their newly purchased home, 129 Hayward avenue.

Ohioans Go All-Out For U.S. Bonds

Volunteers Now Working State

An all-out effort by hundreds of Ohio volunteer workers to put the Security Loan Campaign "over the top" during this week has been pledged to Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder by Chairman Loring L. Gelbach of the Ohio State U. S. Savings Bonds Committee.

Gelbach, who is also president of the Central National Bank in Cleveland, made the pledge at a ceremony in Secretary Snyder's offices during the presentation of a proclamation by Governor Thomas J. Herbert setting aside this week as "Security Loan Week."

In accepting the proclamation, Snyder paid tribute to Ohioans for their support of the U. S. Savings Bonds program, pointing out that as of March 31, $2.7 billion in Savings Bonds are now being held by individuals in that state.

He also emphasized that the Security Loan Campaign, the first peacetime drive, is important to Ohio and to the nation.

HE GAVE this message: "I will be watching the progress of the campaign in Ohio. The patriotic service of citizens in every Ohio community will enable you to attain your local bond goal. I urge every adult resident of the State to buy an extra bond or to sign up for the Payroll Savings plan where you work or the Bond-a-Month program at your bank."

"The volunteer workers" said Gelbach in response, "are determined to ask everyone in Ohio, at least once, to buy a Bond."

MICAHIAH, A PROPHET OF ISRAEL

WHO WAS BRAVE ENOUGH TO TELL THE TRUTH

MANY MEN have given flippancy answers to the question what does the world need most? We can all agree, however, that one of the most crying needs of this day is men and women who speak the truth, whether by so doing they make themselves popular or unpopular.

There is much confused thinking about every important issue before the world today. Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could depend upon one man—a prophet—to tell us the truth, so that we could take our stand for what we knew to be right, and insist upon our leaders following it?

This is the story of a man who dared to speak the truth, as the Lord gave it to him, in spite of the Lord's command and probable persecution. Many men have so suffered when they did the same—many have died martyr's deaths. Such people are not popular with those who want to hear pleasant words that praise and flatter and sanction them to take the path they want to follow and tell them all will be well if they do.

Ahab, king of Israel, was a wicked man and he married one of the cruellest and most ruthless women in all Biblical history—Jezebel. He had long abandoned the worship of Jehovah, but he kept a host—400—of so-called prophets who were what in this day we would call "yes men." What the king wanted to do, that was what they said the Lord sanctioned.

For three years there had been peace between the Hebrews and their neighbors and enemies, the Syrians. Now, since the separation of the Hebrew nation into two kingdoms, Israel, over which Ahab ruled, and Judah, with King Jehoshaphat on the throne, there had been no friendly relations between the two monarchs.

However, Ahab, having a yearning to attack the Syrians and get back some of the land lost by the Israelites in times past, proposed to Jehoshaphat, who had come to visit him, that the two should attack the Syrians. Jehoshaphat agreed, but thought it a good idea, before doing anything drastic, that they have the Lord's sanction. Jehoshaphat was a good man and faithful to his God.

Ahab sent for his 400 prophets

Woman Now In 46th Day Coma

TOLEDO, July 2—Mrs. Wesley W. Vance, 38, of Toledo, entered her 46th day of unconsciousness today following plastic surgery to clear facial injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

Doctors at St. Vincent's hospital, where Mrs. Vance is confined, have given up hope for her recovery, according to her husband, but are of the opinion that she may live from two weeks to a year.

Her husband said that she has lost all use of her hands and feet but seems to have a fairly good heart condition. The unconscious woman is being fed through a glass tube.

Ohioans Go All-Out For U.S. Bonds

Volunteers Now Working State

An all-out effort by hundreds of Ohio volunteer workers to put the Security Loan Campaign "over the top" during this week has been pledged to Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder by Chairman Loring L. Gelbach of the Ohio State U. S. Savings Bonds Committee.

Gelbach, who is also president of the Central National Bank in Cleveland, made the pledge at a ceremony in Secretary Snyder's offices during the presentation of a proclamation by Governor Thomas J. Herbert setting aside this week as "Security Loan Week."

In accepting the proclamation, Snyder paid tribute to Ohioans for their support of the U. S. Savings Bonds program, pointing out that as of March 31, $2.7 billion in Savings Bonds are now being held by individuals in that state.

He also emphasized that the Security Loan Campaign, the first peacetime drive, is important to Ohio and to the nation.

HE GAVE this message: "I will be watching the progress of the campaign in Ohio. The patriotic service of citizens in every Ohio community will enable you to attain your local bond goal. I urge every adult resident of the State to buy an extra bond or to sign up for the Payroll Savings plan where you work or the Bond-a-Month program at your bank."

"The volunteer workers" said Gelbach in response, "are determined to ask everyone in Ohio, at least once, to buy a Bond."

109 Million Prints In FBI File

Agency Ends 24th Year

WASHINGTON, July 2 — The FBI's identification division celebrated its 24th birthday yesterday with more than 109-million sets of fingerprints tucked snugly away in its files.

If put one on top of the other, the FBI says proudly, these fingerprint cards would make 163 separate stacks each as high as the Washington Monument—which measures a neat 555-and-a-half feet tall.

Furthermore, the FBI discovered after some research, the cards would reach halfway around the world with enough left over to reach from Boston to Miami if they were fanned out edge-to-edge.

When it was established on July 1, 1924, the division had a nucleus of 310,128 arrest records to start with. They had been obtained from the International Association of Chiefs of Police and Leavenworth penitentiary.

SINCE THAT time, the FBI fingerprint file has grown to serve as a valuable identification unit in disasters as well as an aid to law enforcement.

After the recent plane crash near Mt. Carmel, Pa., the FBI identified 21 of the victims through the identification division.

Of these, nine had their fingerprints taken while in military service; six while applying for defense jobs; one in seeking civil service employment, one when hired as an airline employee.

Other identifications were effected through fingerprint cards forwarded to the division by local police departments in connection with applications for pistol and auto driver permits.

Forty percent of the railroad revenue in Pennsylvania is from freight consisting of products of the mines.

Man, 24, Admits Hammer Slaying Of Woman, 60

CLEVELAND, July 2—James Buchanan, 24, confessed early today to the slaying of Mrs. Ilda Koogler in suburban East Cleveland April 24.

Police Chief Horace S. Weaver said Buchanan, who already has been linked with several hammer attacks on women in the Cleveland area, signed a statement admitting that he beat the 60-year-old woman to death.

Weaver said Buchanan broke down after several hours of questioning. The confessed slayer was taken to the Koogler home before signing his statement.

Buchanan said that he killed the widow while grabbing her purse. He denied dragging her body to Ambrose Arbor in which it was found, stating that he killed her in the driveway and left her there.

Several Cleveland women, who had suffered various degrees of beatings in recent purse snatching, identified Buchanan in a police lineup yesterday.

Police found a fountain pen and a wristwatch, believed to belong to Mrs. Koogler, in Buchanan's home during a search last night.

Cracker Burns 2 Tots, Woman

CINCINNATI, July 2—A 17-year-old boy was under arrest for juvenile delinquency here today, charged with throwing a firecracker that injured two children and a young woman.

He denied throwing the firecracker that inflicted second degree burns on the legs of Richard Kennedy, 4, and his brother, Sidney, one. Lavina White, 24, was burned slightly on the right leg.

Police Lt. Lloyd Simon said an angry crowd of about 100 persons gathered quickly to search for the malefactor. However, he added:

"The policemen on the beat were there in a matter of seconds and the others came quickly. The crowd did not have a chance to get unruly, and it was dispersed quickly."

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

The almost fantastic possibility that a man at last has arisen on Continental Europe able to defy Joseph Stalin in the Soviet dictator's hitherto uncontested sphere of power has come to the forefront of attention.

Surprise has followed since the Soviet Cominform denounced Marshal Tito and his Yugoslav Communist supporters.

The chief unexpected event is that Tito seems to be standing by his guns on refusing to admit the infallibility of the Kremlin, in demanding national equality for his country and urging a new Balkan bloc of Soviet satellite states whose mere mention always has been poison to Moscow.

Yet Tito, so far as can be ascertained, has not been liquidated or restrained.

His capital of Belgrade is carrying on normally, despite continued rumors that Soviet troops are only two-score miles away.

HIS NEWSPAPERS are filled with calm previews of events

ahead of which Yugoslavian principles of "free enterprise" and friendly relations with both Western and Eastern states form the score of all programs and agendas.

The question arises in many minds: "How can Tito thus do what no other leader of a satellite state of the Soviet Union even dared to think of?"

Assuming that the whole Yugoslav-Kremlin dispute is completely open and aboveboard, and not a Soviet propaganda move to delude the Western Democracies and lull them again into any unwarranted optimism. There are these factors to be considered.

1—Tito has a powerful army, believed to consist of 36 good divisions. Lt. Gen. Bryant Moore, who commanded the 88th American "Blue Devil" Division at Trieste, never underestimated the Serb fighting ability.

2—Tito is an immensely colorful character. He was bitterly criticized for permitting the death of American airmen who flew over Yugoslav territory. But he never completely "lost face" with the West.

3—He has been able to push his own personality to a point of prestige enjoyed by no other satellite leader. Yet he apparently has managed to keep out of

Xenian Awaits Electric Chair

COLUMBUS, July 2—Clifford W. Gayles, 34, of Xenia, must die tonight in the Ohio penitentiary electric chair for the Aug. 31 murder of Mrs. Edna Adkins, 33, of Franklin.

He will eat a last meal of fried chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy, peas, lettuce salad, strawberries, ice cream, coffee and lemonade.

Governor Herbert denied a plea for clemency yesterday. Gayles had been paroled from a previous murder charge only two months before he went on a crime rampage last summer that resulted in assaults on three persons and the murder of Mrs. Adkins.

Lights On Again In Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, July 2—Clifford W. Gayles, 34, of Xenia, must die tonight in the Ohio penitentiary electric chair for the Aug. 31 murder of Mrs. Edna Adkins, 33, of Franklin.

The tax went into effect yesterday, making the city the fourth in the state to levy such an assessment. Toledo, the first, collects a one percent tax; Columbus has a one-half percent measure, while a new three-mill tax went into operation in Youngstown yesterday.

First effect of Springfield's new measure was an order from City Manager Oscar Fleckner to turn on the 693 street lights. They had been turned out last February when the city lacked funds to pay its light bill.

A Twentieth Century Fund survey reports that one third of the American people live in areas without public libraries.

109 Million Prints In FBI File

Agency Ends
24th Year

WASHINGTON, July 2 — The FBI's identification division celebrated its 24th birthday yesterday with more than 109-million sets of fingerprints tucked snugly away in its files.

If put one on top of the other, the FBI says proudly, these fingerprint cards would make 163 separate stacks each as high as the Washington Monument—which measures a neat 555-and-a-half feet tall.

Furthermore, the FBI discovered after some research, the cards would reach halfway around the world with enough left over to reach from Boston to Miami if they were fanned out edge-to-edge.

When it was established on July 1, 1924, the division had a nucleus of 310,188 arrest records to start with. They had been obtained from the International Association of Chiefs of Police and Leavenworth penitentiary.

Since that time, the FBI's fingerprint file has grown to serve as a valuable identification unit in disasters as well as an aid to law enforcement.

After the recent plane crash near Mt. Carmel, Pa., the FBI identified 21 of the victims through the identification division.

Of these, nine had their fingerprints taken while in military service; six while applying for defense jobs; one in seeking civil service employment, one when hired as an airline employee.

Other identifications were effected through fingerprint cards forwarded to the division by local police departments in connection with applications for pistol and auto driver permits.

By J. C. Oestreich
INS Foreign Observer

ahead of which Yugoslavian principles of "free enterprise" and friendly relations with both Western and Eastern states form the score of all programs and agendas.

The question arises in many minds: "How can Tito thus do what no other leader of a satellite state of the Soviet Union even dared to think of?"

Assuming that the whole Yugoslav-Kremlin dispute is completely open and above-board, and not a Soviet propaganda move to delude the Western Democracies and lull them again into any unwarranted optimism. There are these factors to be considered.

1—Tito has a powerful army, believed to consist of 38 good divisions. Lt. Gen. Bryant Moore, who commanded the 88th American "Blue Devil" Division at Trieste, never underestimated the Serb fighting Moscow.

Yet Tito, so far as can be ascertained, has not been liquidated or restrained.

His capital of Belgrade is carrying on normally, despite continuing rumors that Soviet troops are only two-score miles away.

HIS NEWSPAPERS are filled with calm previews of events

Tinkers Falter In Loop Tilt

Boyers softball team staged a last inning rally in its Thursday Circleville Night Softball League game to hold a 6-5 win over Tinks. The Boyer win gave both teams a standing of one win and one lost in the second round of league play.

Tinks grabbed the lead in the first inning of the game by scoring three tallies after blanking the Boyers in the first half of the frame.

They held the margin unchanged until the third inning when Boyers pushed across a single tally and added a trio of markers in the fourth to hold a 4-3 lead over the Tinks.

Tinks wrested the lead from Boyers in the sixth inning by scoring two runs on an error, a walk and a single.

IN THE FIRST half of the seventh inning, with the score standing at 5-4 in favor of Tinks, Boyers staged its rally to score two runs on two singles, a double, a hit by batsman and a walk. Tinks went down on the 6-5 count in the last of the inning on three infield pop-ups.

With the Tink loss Thursday night, Isalys softball team, which won the first round of play last week, leads the league again as the only undefeated squad in competition.

Isalys has won both its second round tilt for a 1,000 percent average, while its nearest competitors have lost one and won one for .500 percent.

Friday night's card at Ted Lewis Park calls for an exhibition tilt between Richards and a Jackson team piloted by Harry Strawser. Strawser is known to Circleville softball fans as the hurler who faced the Ferguson Auditors when Isalys played the Columbus team recently.

The league is to resume its schedule Monday when Boyers play Millirons. Tuesday night calls for Mumaws to play Boyd's, and the last league game of next week is scheduled for Wednesday when the league-leading Isaly crew takes on Tinks.

Indians Fans Mighty Proud Of Veeck, et al

NEW YORK, July 2—People who are rooting for the Cleveland Indians to win the American League pennant are thinking mainly of two guys, Bill Veeck, the ex-Marine who runs the club, and Lou Boudreau, the manager.

Veeck has the almost unprecedented distinction among club-operators of being the recipient of a party commemorating his second anniversary as head of the Cleveland organization.

The hometown fans recently trundled a huge cake to home plate and nearly tore down the stands with applause when Veeck made a speech saying that the club wasn't his, but really belonged to the fans.

He has built up a tremendous organization, and his leading Tribe right now is really flying, although the Yankees and Red Sox are the favorites.

Cotton Slips But Holds Edge In British Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, July 2—The British Open golf championship became a wide open battle today when Henry Cotton, who led by four strokes after 36 holes, slumped to a 75. At the end of 54 holes, he had a total of 212.

Cotton, England's most popular golfer and winner of the championship in 1924 and 1927, was well on the road to his third title when he broke the course record yesterday with a 66 after shooting an opening round 71.

Today, however, Muirfield's treacherous bunkers and terrible rough caught up with him and any of a half dozen golfers were right in the tussle for the open crown.

Seven Americans still in the competition long since had been eliminated from the fight for the title, barring a Grade A miracle.

JOHNNY BULLA, of Phoenix, Ariz., shot 74 and 72 in the first two rounds and took a 73 today for 219.

Frank Stranahan, British amateur champion from Toledo, with previous rounds of 77 and 71, took a 75 for a three-round total of 223 today.

Capt. Ed Kingsley, Utah amateur with the American Army in Germany, picked up a 77 today to go with his first two rounds of 77 and 69, and also had a 54-hole total of 223.

Lawson Little, husky Cleveland pro, shot a 76 after a 72 and a 76 previously. He had 224.

The Giants' captain and standout slugger, who recently had a bone cartilage removed from his leg, has complained that his leg hurts worse than ever, and adds: "I can't go on much longer."

Cooper will visit doctors at the New York Medical Center today for an official diagnosis and prescription for his ailing leg.

Cooper Booked For Clinic Test

NEW YORK, July 2—The New York Giants may learn today whether their star catcher, Walker Cooper, will be able to play regularly with them for the remainder of the 1948 season.

The Giants' captain and standout slugger, who recently had a bone cartilage removed from his leg, has complained that his leg hurts worse than ever, and adds: "I can't go on much longer."

Cooper will visit doctors at the New York Medical Center today for an official diagnosis and prescription for his ailing leg.

Pickaway Farmers Alerted Against Black Leg Disease

Isolated Cases Are Reported

Vaccines Urged As Sure Stopper

Serums and vaccines were available Friday as preventatives and limited cures to Pickaway County farmers who have reported isolated cases of Black Leg disease among cattle herds.

Reports of the dreaded cattle disease, which can kill an animal within three days and almost completely wipe out a herd in a week, have been noted in scattered sectors of the county and on the Hartman farm in Franklin County.

Dr. Harry Geyer, state veterinarian of the division of animal husbandry in Columbus, backed county veterinarians in their warnings to county breeders to check herds for Black Leg disease and report the cases immediately.

Symptoms of the disease can be noted in the animal through lameness and painful movements. Also leg of animal turns black, swells and holds a gas bubble under the skin. This is the final tell-tale symptom.

THE DISEASE is believed to originate as a soil organism and takes effect mostly in the Spring or Fall during changes in the season. Veterinarians agree that the serum works only rarely once the animal is affected.

Dr. Geyer declared, however, that vaccine is a good preventative but is useless as a curative. If the animal is affected, he stated, the surest measure of its control is to slaughter the animal and thoroughly dispose of the carcass.

Black Leg disease originates mostly in low-lying, poorly-drained areas. Cases in this county have been reported in the Stoutsburg, Laurelvile and Saltcreek Valley areas, veterinarians disclosed.

The newest siege of Black Leg has been reported predominately among herds that have only recently been imported from the West. It is not widely believed that the disease is originating in this or nearby counties.

Veterinarians warned that

Tucker Car Firm Shut Temporarily

Security Chiefs To Check Books

CHICAGO, July 2—The Tucker Corp. suspended operations today so complete records of the firm can be turned over to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Preston Tucker, president of the automobile concern, said the suspension of business was "temporary."

The SEC has demanded that the Tucker records be produced in order for the commission to investigate the financial operations of the corporation.

Tucker said: "Tying up such records at this time will make it impossible to continue operation. Whether its action is right or wrong, the SEC has effectively blocked our very corporate operation at the most crucial point, when we are on the threshold of mass production."

Tucker blamed "powerful pressure groups" as instigators of the SEC's investigation into the corporation's stock sales. He said production lines have been set up capable of turning out 1,000 of the rear-engine automobiles daily.

"THE COMMISSION (SEC) has succeeded," Tucker asserted. "where our toughest competitors and industrial rivals have failed. They have stopped us for the moment. We are confident we will win a clean bill of health and can go back to work."

Earlier Tucker had labeled as "untrue" SEC charges that his firm made misrepresentations in its stock sales.

They say foot rot is primarily a skin infection and can be detected by sore hoofs on the cattle. Farmers also were warned to be on the alert for malignant edema—gas which is serious and can be fatal to the animal.

Dr. Geyer has requested that all veterinarians and farmers who find cases in their areas to make an immediate report to him in the state office building in Columbus.

He said the report should include the number of animals affected, in what areas and owner of the herd.

In this way, Dr. Geyer stated, the state can move in and help wipe out the disease before it gets started on a wide-spread basis.

Wallaceites Eye State Election

COLUMBUS, July 2—Backers of Henry A. Wallace for President in Franklin County will decide next week whether they will attempt to enter candidates for state senator, representative, and congressman from the 12th district.

William H. Gibbon, chairman of the Wallace-for-President group, said that in any case only one candidate for state senator and one for representative would be entered. The district elects two senators and five representatives. The candidates would have to file by petition as independent candidates by Aug. 4.

Tucker Car Firm Shut Temporarily

Security Chiefs To Check Books

CHICAGO, July 2—The Tucker Corp. suspended operations today so complete records of the firm can be turned over to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Preston Tucker, president of the automobile concern, said the suspension of business was "temporary."

"THE PRESIDENT'S behind the eight ball a good deal of the time," says President Truman, holding Los Angeles Press club's symbol of off-record talks he received from Walter Ames, club chairman. Speaking before club, he assailed the House rules committee for "roosting" on such bills as housing, and urged the people to "force action." (International)

Black Leg is not to be confused with foot rot which is often reported among cattle herds. Foot rot is not very contagious and seldom is fatal.

THEY SAY foot rot is primarily a skin infection and can be detected by sore hoofs on the cattle. Farmers also were warned to be on the alert for malignant edema—a gas which is serious and can be fatal to the animal.

Dr. Geyer has requested that all veterinarians and farmers who find cases in their areas to make an immediate report to him in the state office building in Columbus.

He said the report should include the number of animals affected, in what areas and owner of the herd.

In this way, Dr. Geyer stated, the state can move in and help wipe out the disease before it gets started on a wide-spread basis.
